Election Inspector/Worker Job Description

Categories of election workers include:

- Chair/Co-Chair – Work as a chair or with another co-chair to manage the polling place.
- E-Poll Book Workers – E-Poll book workers work with one or two other persons assigned to the e-poll book computer in the polling place. E-Poll book workers use a computer to check voter eligibility and record that an individual has voted.
- Regular Election Workers – Regular election workers will: offer instruction for application to vote forms, direct voter flow in the precinct, check ballot numbers against application to vote forms, assist near the tabulator, assist with curbside voting, etc.
- A.V. Counting Board Workers – A.V. counting board workers function as a team to process absentee ballots in a location separate from the regular polling places. These workers do not deal directly with voters or the public (other than the clerk, deputy clerk, and/or clerk-appointed assistants), and public contact is prohibited until processing and closing functions are complete.
- Receiving Board Workers – Receiving board workers arrive after the polls close (at the Township Hall at approximately 8:15 pm) and use a checklist to ensure that workers at the polling places have completed all tasks/responsibilities as required by the Bureau of Elections.
- Subs – Subs are available on Election Day to replace a worker who may have an unexpected circumstance which causes them to be absent from the polls or to leave early.

Election Inspector/Worker Job Description

Please Note: The job of election inspector may involve a very long day. In most cases starting time is at 6 am (exceptions include Receiving Board, Subs, A.V. Counting Board Workers, or if you have made special arrangements with the election coordinator to work a half day). The polls close at 8 pm, and all election workers are required to return to the Township Hall while the Receiving Board finishes checking the work of the precinct workers. It can mean a 15 to 17 hour day (or more).

In addition, if the Receiving Board finds that the precinct you are working in doesn't balance out at the end of election day and can't resolve the issue, the County Clerk's office will require all workers from your precinct to meet at the Court House the day after the election to do a recount of ballots.
